Nelson County answers call to crisis

BRAD BOWMAN
bbowman@kni.com

Throughout the nation, everyone has seen the devastation from last week's tornadoes. The towns of West Liberty and Henryville, Ind., continue to receive overwhelming support from citizens throughout Kentuckiana. Several Nelson County residents and businesses have answered the call and continue to coordinate donation sites and will make deliveries themselves.

Donations for West Liberty

Jeremy Jones, Bardstown, is working with Bumper to Bumper at 304 N. Fourth St. to collect donations for West Liberty. Bumper to Bumper has been sending donated items back with company trucks that deliver parts to Nelson County from the Louisville store. Those donations are being dropped off at the Charlestown, Ind., store for residents in Henryville. Jones is also working with them to take donations next weekend to Morgan County. With three trucks outfitted with trailers, Jones hopes to have all donations collected by March 16.

"We are going to take everything from toiletries, furniture and supplies for babies," Jones said.

Jones initially thought of having a yard sale to raise money for aid, but decided to do more. He is currently is coordinating with the American Legion Post No. 288 in Bloomfield

The senior class received CPR training while students in other grades took part in ACT and PLAN academic testing. The ACT is required for all high school juniors in Kentucky. While juniors took that test, 10th-graders took the PLAN test and freshmen took a practice PLAN test as preparatory steps toward the ACT. The senior class broke into several groups to take the American Heart Association's Family and Friends CPR course. School nurses from throughout the Nelson County School System along with EMS professionals from Nelson County teamed up to provide the training.

Long-range plan addresses city water, wastewater

After discussion of the occupational tax increase last summer, Bardstown City Councilman Fred Hagan realized the city didn't have a long-range plan in place to ensure it spends its money wisely and has a way to prioritize projects.

When citizens asked Hagan why the city needed an occupational tax increase during City Council's debate on the issue, Hagan concluded that although he knew what the city needs, those needs should be outlined in a specific place.

"It just kind of smacked me in the face — this is what we need to have," he said.

Hagan, chair of the long-range planning committee, presented a preliminary draft of the city's long-range plan relating to water, wastewater and stormwater management at Tuesday's Bardstown City Council working session. The plan outlines a number of projects the city has undertaken or should take on to maintain infrastructure.

One of the suggested projects would be to clean debris and silt that has collected near a pump station in the Beech Fork River. The pump station is close to a rubble dam in the river, near a bridge

Ordinance change required for shooting range

Under a 1937 city ordinance, an indoor gun range is not permissible in Bardstown city limits.

That ordinance may have to be changed, Mayor Bill Sheckles said at a work session of Bardstown City Council Tuesday evening.

Patrick Hayden, owner of Keene's Depot, presented his plans to construct an indoor shooting range to City Council Feb. 28. Hayden said he plans to move his business from Old Bloomfield Pike to Glenwood Drive, and hopes to build the shooting range at his new location.

At the time, Sheckles said an ordinance prohibiting

Law enforcement warns of new scams

ERIN L. MCCOY

emccoy@kystandard.com

Scammers posing as government officials may be the newest threat to Nelson Countians, but plots to trick people out of their money come in all shapes and sizes.

Nelson County Sheriff Stephen Campbell received three complaints of scams in a period of two weeks in the latter half of February — a higher number than usual, he said.

One woman reported receiving several calls from different individuals claiming to be federal attorneys or officials, and insisting she had an unpaid bill.

"Usually they say something about 'federal' because that really gets people's attention," Campbell said. "There were two or three of them working in concert on the same scam to make it sound more legitimate."

Those scammers convinced the woman to send them money, and her loss amounted to several hundred dollars, Campbell estimated.

"I felt sorry for her because she was very embarrassed to even come in — a very intelligent lady," he said.

Playing catch-up with my soul

In a story told by Rabbi Kushner, a group of tourists on an African safari hired several native porters to carry their supplies for them.

After three days the porters announced they needed to stop and rest for a day.

They didn't appear to be tired, so the tourists asked why the need to stop. The porters said, "We are not tired, but we have walked too far too fast and now we must wait for our souls to catch up to us."

I totally get that. I run and run and work and life zips by and my soul gets left behind in the dust.

So, today I'm letting my soul catch up to me. Below is a hodgepodge of things I ran across today while going through some old folders of stuff I've kept. Each helped revive me.

• Email exchange between me and my pastor from 2007:

Me — "Do you ever feel like an imposter when you preach? I spoke Saturday to a group of women who were gracious and attentive, but I struggled big time. As I got to the real meat of my message my thoughts got muddled and I felt like I was talking gibberish so I stopped mid-way and said, 'I'm sorry. My brain is mush — I need to pray' and then went on. But how amateurish is that?"

"On my drive home I felt like I was a dirty vessel and God couldn't shine through me. I feel like I'll never get any better and I don't know how to get better, as a speaker or as a person."

Pastor — "Every week I kneel and pray with a deacon or elder before church. My prayer is always the same: 'Father, forgive me my sins; don't hold them against these people.' I am almost always self-dependent, prayerless and struggling to connect with God as my Father. I figure I'm only an imposter if I act like this isn't so. People expect me to be a better Christian than they are, yet I'm not. So, who I am falls way short of what they want me to be (and should be), but I'm not an imposter, just a very weak man trying to do a very hard job."

• "Nothing exceeds Thy power, nothing is too great for Thee to do; nothing is too good for Thee to give." — quote from "The Valley of Vision," a book of Puritan prayers

• The blood of Jesus is sufficient for repeated failure — repeated repentance is progress. — from notes taken during a sermon in 2008

• "True saints do not get discouraged over their faults, for they recognize that a person who feels no guilt can never find healing — neither can a person who wallows in guilt. The sense of guilt only serves its designed purpose if it presses us toward the God who promises forgiveness and restoration... I now realize that Christians are the only persons who do not have to go through life feeling guilty. Guilt is only a symptom; we listen to it because it drives us toward the cure." — Philip Yancey, Christianity Today article, "Guilt Good and Bad"

• Another e-mail to my pastor from last year: "I've been thinking that if 'religion' wasn't part of my job then I don't want to do it anymore. I still like Jesus, but something inside me wants to chuck it all and not have to think about 'Am I doing well spiritually? Why do I let my Bible sit and collect dust? Why am I not excited about my faith like others seem to be?'"

"And then I came to church this past week and we sang, 'If you tarry 'til you're better, you will never come at all' and 'Not the righteous... sinners Jesus came to call.' We sang, 'He is able; he is willing; doubt no more' and 'Let not conscience make you linger, nor of fitness fondly dream' and 'All the fitness he requires is to feel your need of him,' and finally, 'He has washed us with his blood.'"

"I hugged my bulletin all the out to my car!"

• Here's a great soul catch-up message from Jesus:

"Are you tired? Worn out? Burned out on religion? Come to me. Get away with me and you'll recover your life. I'll show you how to take a real rest. Walk with me... learn the unforced rhythms of grace. I won't lay anything heavy or ill-fitting on you. Keep company with me and you'll learn to live freely and lightly." — Matthew 11:29-30, The Message.

Political parties get ready to choose local leadership

If you are a Nelson County Republican and have been envious of members of the Grand Old Party in states that have been “in play” with primaries and caucuses over the past few weeks, you have a chance Saturday to get involved in true grassroots political action.

The local party will hold a mass convention at the Bardstown High School cafeteria. This will be your opportunity to stand for local level positions or to vote for your leadership in the coming months.

Precinct captains, delegates and alternates to the second district convention will be selected, along with a Nelson County leadership board. Naturally, only registered Republicans will be able to participate in the process. For better or worse, the long and drawn-out GOP process to select a candidate to run in the fall against incumbent President Obama has, at the least, kept politics in front of the public even if Kentucky was not part of any “Super Tuesday” or “early bird” primaries.

Don’t worry, registered Democrats, you have your turn coming up. On March 31, Democrats will gather at their polling places to elect precinct leaders. Party rules call for a man, a woman and a “youth” to be elected for each of the county’s precincts. Then, at 10 a.m. April 14, the Precinct Committee members will meet at the Bardstown City Council Chambers for their County Convention and Caucus. They will nominate and elect the County Democratic Committee. The committee has to be a 50/50 gender mix with at least one “youth.” Also on April 14, the County Caucus will be held with any registered Democrat free to take part in selecting the delegates for the second congressional and state conventions. Those conventions will held June 2 at the Fair and Expo Center in Louisville.

Unlike four years ago when Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama were locked in a battle for the nomination, interest in the grassroots process among Democrats is not sky-high, but Democrat or Republican, getting involved and keeping engaged in politics on the local level is a good way to encourage high voter turnout when the time comes to cast ballots in the general election.

OUR VIEWS

How do you say ‘missed opportunity?’

School districts around the state are working hard this year to catch up with a series of new standards falling into place this year — a new curriculum, a new approach to teaching, new standardized tests. The grade level at which students will learn such concepts as fractions will change, and many teachers are focusing on professional development to refresh themselves on the content they will be teaching.

Yet the common core standards implemented on a national level have missed an essential piece of learning schools should have implemented long ago: foreign language for young children.

Unfortunately, the construction of a curriculum for students of elementary age and younger seems to be just as often about what they can’t learn as it is about what they can. Many view a foreign language as an unnecessary or overly challenging addition to an elementary school curriculum, when it is in fact these very students who should be learning foreign languages more than any others.

In fact, children 5 and younger are the most capable human beings on the planet when it comes to learning a new language. After all, it is at this age that children are learning key skills in the language they will be using for the rest of their lives.

A person’s capacity to quickly and easily learn a foreign language decreases as she grows older. And yet, most American schools wait until high school to even start students on learning a foreign language. It makes as much sense as waiting until someone has arthritis to teach him how to play basketball.

I’m not saying high schoolers can’t learn a language; I learned to speak Spanish in high school.

Incidentally, I had a head start: I took Spanish in third and fourth grades, and still remembered all my colors and numbers, how to roll my “r”s and pronounce “ll” as though it were a “y.” These words were ingrained in my broader vocabulary, existing as reminders from a very early language that the rules of English are entirely subjective — which is perhaps the first rule you have to learn as you start studying a language.

As a language tutor in college, I discovered this was also one of the more difficult facts for older language learners to take in. They would often ask why the Spanish or the French say “car blue” instead of “blue car,” insisting the latter way — the English way — was the right way.

Yet learning a language teaches us so much more than a new vocabulary. It educates us on the subjective world. It teaches us the grammar of our native language as well as our second language. We learn about other cultures. It even accesses, to a certain degree, the mathematical or problem-solving brain.

We could raise bilingual or trilingual children with incredible ease. If daycare students spent half their days with Spanish- or French- or Mandarin- or Urdu-speaking teachers, they would begin speaking Spanish, French, Mandarin or Urdu long before they realized the value of what they knew. When my uncle John was 4 or 5 he hung out with the neighborhood kids on their street in Bangkok. An acquaintance heard him speaking easily in Thai with his playmates, and warned my grandfather he was learning servant’s Thai. The hierarchical identifiers built into any language (including English) is a question for another day, but no matter what type of Thai John was learning, he took on the intricacies of a tonal language with such ease he hardly noticed he was doing it. What an opportunity missed, then, in every child who speaks only one language by age 10. In this increasingly multicultural and multilingual world, America’s children are falling behind as our nation fails to realize, once again, the value of learning a foreign language.

Quietly coming to the aid of others

As a journalist, you have to vet sources, check information and make sure your article is fair and accurate. It can sometimes make one cynical and not always trust your fellow man. The recent tornadoes, which claimed many lives and wiped out entire towns, have restored my faith I have in my fellow Kentuckians — especially here in Bardstown.

I recently covered a story about local residents and business owners in Nelson County who are rising to the occasion and delivering resources themselves. It is the first time in my life that I have ever heard of there being too much help. I interviewed several people in nonprofit organizations stating they didn’t have the manpower to sort through donated items nor have the space to store them. Trucks with trailers line the highways with resources and nowhere to deliver them. Business owners and private citizens have coordinated with each other to make things happen. Sure, there are opportunists out there. Unfortunately, there has been at least one arrest in Indiana of a man attempting to take copper out of a homeowner’s house.

REPORTER
» bbowman@lcni.com

On Wednesday, Gov. Steve Beshear visited the affected areas and shared my optimism.

“After a disaster like the one we have just experienced, I have learned that Kentuckians don’t just offer to help, they offer to help in abundance,” Gov. Beshear said. “Thanks to the generous and tireless spirit of Kentuckians, our families who have been turned out of their homes have warm meals, a place to sleep, and the assurance that more help is on the way.”

Aren’t we just too busy nowadays to have time for anything? What happened to the fast paced “me” culture we have been nurturing for the last few decades?

I recently talked with a gentleman who is the store manager of Bumper to Bumper in Louisville. One of their employees decided they could send supplies with the same trucks that deliver parts in Nelson County to a town near Henryville, Ind. This employee didn’t get their good intentions wrapped up in any red corporate tape or meet a wall of legalese policy. They just quietly made it happen. When I remarked with delight and surprise, he candidly said, “We don’t have a great name in the rest of the world, but Americans definitely come together when they need to.”

I feel as if I have stepped into a time machine somewhere. People don’t act this way in the 21st century with an overabundance of policy, protocol and other pedantic poppycock! These charitable actions just don’t match up with apocalyptic cultural suicide we are supposed to be experiencing. Did someone make a change in the Aztec calendar’s planner? Given the recent outpouring of my fellow Kentuckians, the end of the world may not be nigh.

>> GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Regarding casinos and doctor visits

We finished the first half of this year's session with progress on two major issues: casino gambling; and prescriptions for common cold and allergy medications. The prescription issue is not yet settled, although one major effort (SB 50) was withdrawn; the casino proposal is dead.

Regarding casinos, the constitutional amendment that was offered said (roughly): "We the People require the General Assembly to permit casinos at horse tracks plus two other locations." The state senate voted not to pass it. Surprisingly, the vote was bipartisan for and bipartisan against. While these measures require a 60 percent vote to pass, SB 151 lost by more than half of the Senate. I doubt that the House has enough votes to pass such a bill, but we won't be voting on it — at least not this year.

For the Commonwealth the assumed benefit of retention (and expansion) of gambling dollars in Kentucky is increased tax revenue. If we accept that argument then we should also agree that it doesn't matter where the gambling takes place, as long as it's inside our border.

One objective of the big players in the casino business is to control where they are built. They don't want a casino in, say, Nelson County. To permit expanded gambling everywhere would dilute their "piece of the action." We know why the big money wants to centralize the action, but why would legislators care where the action is located if our only concern was increased revenue for the state? For the answer, I'd probably follow the money.

DAVID FLOYD
STATE REP.
50th District

As a legislator my position has been that I would allow a constitutional amendment to come before the people for a vote, if it was fair to all; and by that I mean that people in one county should have the same opportunity as people in any other county. It's difficult to support something that limits opportunity to a few businesses.

What I'd prefer is an amendment that would say "We the People grant authority for any county to approve by local option any gaming business within its boundaries." In my mind that's a fair amendment which offers opportunity to any county where local folks approve.

As a citizen (when I go to my precinct on Election Day) I'd vote against any expansion of gambling. I don't believe that it's good fiscal policy, and point to other gambling states as an example; all of them are struggling with their budgets, so the added revenue hasn't solved any problems for them. Of course, there are social consequences as well — all bad.

Regarding pseudoephedrine (PSE) products, SB 3 was introduced after SB 50 was withdrawn. This bill is a compromise that permits the purchase from your pharmacy of up to 24 grams of PSE per year without having to go to a doctor. The thinking is that this quantity should be sufficient for the needs of most people who use the product regularly. But it's not enough, if you use it every day; a doctor's visit would be required for more.

Some law enforcement folks are supporting this bill because they believe that it will help reduce the illegal manufacture of methamphetamine, which always produces toxic byproducts. (They preferred SB 50, which required a doctor's visit for any purchase of PSE.)

I've offered a common-sense solution that will require a pharmacist to determine if the PSE is necessary for the health of the purchaser. Today, a pharmacy clerk can fill the order mechanically, whereas my bill (HB 166) would require a review by a pharmacist or pharmacist intern. This would significantly reduce the incidence of "smurfing," whereby one person buys his allotment of PSE and sells it to someone else — who uses it to manufacture meth..

Since hearing from you is the best part of my job, I need your input on this and other matters that are important to you. Call me at home or leave a message at 800-372-7181. This Saturday's "Coffee with Dave" is at the High Grove Grocery. We start at 10 a.m., and I hope to see you there.

View of historic properties

To the editor:
Preservation and renovation of historic properties are very important parts of sustainability here in Bardstown. The preservation or renovation of properties is often like a starting point or an anchor for the redevelopment of a block, street or an entire district... I think that all of us can agree on that. We, in Bardstown, know that historic buildings and districts can be very tangible symbols of our community's interest in honoring our heritage, of valuing our character, and just a sense of place and we are getting the most out of our prior investments in infrastructure, development and encouraging growth in already developed areas.

Repurchasing old buildings, particularly vacant buildings, reduces the need for construction of new buildings and the consumption of land and materials. Historic buildings are inherently sustainable. Sustainability begins with preservation. Preservation keeps our town's history and culture alive. I believe that people with influence have a duty as a citizen to act in accommodating the livability we have learned to enjoy here in Bardstown.

We are rapidly approaching the possibility of razing a historic structure, simply because of neglect. These historic structures are very basic parts of the fabric of our unique town. It is very important to protect and sustain our old buildings.

An 'epidemic' of dog bites?

To the editor:
In response to Frank Douglas:
"The dog in Saturday's horrible killing was, yes as almost always, a German shepherd, commonly called a police dog ... yet we go on permitting this dangerous, slinky breed to multiply and to run at large. Think twice before buying a police dog. Keep a rattlesnake instead; it will give a warning at least." (The Progress, Feb. 11, 1947)

"There should be a clause in the ordinance outlawing private ownership of German shepherds... Every time you read about a child being killed or mauled by a dog or dogs, the odds are overwhelming that the dirty work was done by the shepherd. A father in West Virginia battled a pack of shepherds with a garden hoe while they tore his two small sons to pieces. A little girl in Houston, who was horribly maimed by a shepherd, must go for the rest of her life wearing a wig...." (San Antonio Express, July 10, 1969)

There has always been a segment of the population that believes breed is the root cause of dog attacks.

For whatever reasons, these people seem uninterested in examining the circumstances around the attack or refuse to acknowledge the popularity and increased numbers of these breeds will necessarily be reflected in their "overrepresentation" in reported cases. However, history clearly bears out that when a certain breed becomes extremely popular in a given time period, and especially when the breed is used by substandard owners for negative functions, these will be the breeds found in reported cases of severe and fatal dog attacks.

The truth is — the incidence and frequency of dog attacks have remained relatively consistent during the last century, regardless of the popularity or involvement of certain breeds of dogs. The extreme popularity of the German shepherd during certain decades did not significantly increase the frequency of fatal attacks. Likewise, the immense popularity of the pit bull-type dogs and Rottweilers during the last two decades has not significantly increased in frequency of fatal attacks.

Between 1966-1975 less than 2 percent of all dogs involved in fatal attacks in the United States were of the breeds which today are targeted so frequently as the solution to canine aggression — pit bull or rottweiler).

>> Range

the discharge of a firearm in city limits may not prohibit the range. But by Tuesday's meeting, City Attorney Tom Donan had reviewed that 1937 city ordinance.

"The language in the ordinance is pretty ironclad and there's no interpreting the ordinance to allow an indoor gun range," Donan said. "I think it would make sense just to amend the ordinance at this point."

In the process of reviewing that ordinance, the city had discovered another that may also need to be amended or removed, prohibiting public dances on Sundays. The ordinance was passed in 1954 and most recently amended in 1989. The only exception to the rule is when New Year's Eve falls on a Sunday.

"We'll go through that whole section ... and take out some of those 1930 ordinances that really don't apply to today's time," Sheckles said.

At a staff meeting Wednesday morning, Sheckles reportedly asked department heads to review the ordinances relating to each of their departments to ensure they're up to date.

Paddlefish

The City of Bardstown may have an opportunity for some extra income — from caviar sales.

Tim Parrott of Aquila International Inc. said he has stocked about 2,300 acres of government-owned lakes around the state with paddlefish, which produce caviar, an in-demand commodity for which prices are rising.

If Parrott's company is allowed to stock Symphon Lake with paddlefish, he said, the city could make roughly $40,000-$45,000 when the eggs are harvested, Parrott estimated.

"The stakeholders, the reservoir owners, get 20 percent of the revenue. It doesn't cost you anything," he told City Council.

Parrott has not yet harvested any of the fish he has stocked, since reservoir ranching was authorized by a 2006 Department of Fish and Wildlife resolution. Eggs are harvested when the fish are 8 to 10 years old. The fish are about 35-55 pounds after 10 years, Tim Parrott passed around this photo at Bardstown City Council Tuesday to give Council members a better idea of what paddlefish look like and their size.

Parrott said.

The fish feed on zooplankton, not on phytoplankton or on other fish, according to Parrott. He added that a study is underway to determine how paddlefish affect zooplankton communities. They do have the potential to keep algae levels down in bodies of water, Parrott pointed out.

Parrott is permitted to catch the fish in gill nets when it's time to harvest their eggs, and this would occur during the wintertime or early spring so as not to disturb fishermen.

Water Treatment Plant Manager Wayne Kendall said he would talk over the idea with Sheckles and city administrators.

Automated meter reading

The City of Bardstown may have found funding to help install automated meter readers on customers' water meters. Such meters could be read more quickly because meter readers could simply drive by to pick up a reading instead of getting out of their vehicles, and could save the city up to $100,000 a year.

"The meter department has asked for many years, can we move toward automated meter reading," city Finance Officer Mike Abell told City Council.

The city obtained a $1.8 million loan from the Kentucky Infrastructure Authority to design and build an upgraded water line to the new Nelson County Industrial Park off Woodlawn Road. However, the final bid for the project came in at $1.2 million, Abell said.

KIA has said the remaining $600,000 could be used to help purchase meter-reading devices and computers and to cover the installation costs of adding attachments to existing meters. A handful of older meters may have to be replaced, Abell said.

The total cost of the project was estimated at $1 million, but may come in at a lower price once it's bid, said Abell. The remaining funds would likely come out of the water department budget over the next three years.

The city currently employs four full-time water meter readers and two other employees to help with service accounts and customers, according to Abell. Automated meter reading for nearly half of the city's roughly 12,500 customers could allow the city to cut two of four meter readers, amounting to $100,000 annual savings in salaries, benefits, vehicles and gas costs.

About 8,000 Bardstown Water customers are outside the city limits. The project would likely start with customers in Boston, then move on to other outlying areas. It takes longer to gather meter readings in area where houses are farther apart, Abell explained.

Audit

Linda Gray of Peercy and Gray PSC in Louisville delivered a clean audit of the city's finances for the 2010-2011 fiscal year.

"You have a good, adequate segregation of duties and good internal controls," Gray told City Council. "You've received an unqualified opinion, which is the best opinion that you could receive."

The city's net assets increased over the previous year, in large part because of grant money invested in the Streetscape Project, Abell said. The increase amounted to more than $12 million, bringing the city's net assets to $71 million, Gray reported.

The general fund showed a negative $118,602 balance, but Abell said that should be corrected by increased occupational tax revenues. Since the tax increase went into effect in January, six months into the fiscal year, the audit of this fiscal year may still show a negative, Abell said.

The cable department lost money because, Abell said, it hasn't always passed the increased cost of programming on to its customers. A cable rate increase at the beginning of the fiscal year should make up those losses, he said.

>> Water

crossing over the river on U.S. 31E, New Haven Road, Hagan explained.

"That is the pool of water from which we pump to Symphon Lake," he said. The buildup of debris makes the pipe intake less efficient, he explained. Meanwhile, a nearby bank is falling in, adding to the debris, and ought to be restored, the plan suggests. Actually getting in the stream to clean it out would require the permission of the Army Corps of Engineers. Hagan said he hopes to include funding for the project in the 2012-2013 city budget, but he's not sure of the cost of the project at this time.

Installing a method to draw water from Symphon Lake when the water level falls below 503 feet above sea level is another project that the city should consider, Hagan added. Hagan said he couldn't remember the last time the water fell that low, but said it would be a wise precautionary measure.

A project much larger in scope would be to create a coherent plan for the replacement of city water lines — especially smaller 4-inch, 2-inch and 1-inch pipes at the end of distribution lines, many of which are in neighborhoods.

"There's not a good record of those lines," Hagan explained. Funding to create a comprehensive map of the lines, he hopes, may be inserted into next year's budget, though the cost of the mapping remains unclear. Right now, the lines are replaced as they break.

"You're just dealing with breaks a lot and it's really reactive more than proactive," City Civil Engineer Jessica Filiatreau told the council.

"That's a very inefficient way to fix the lines," Hagan said. "The plan is to map where all those are, make a survey and know what we have, and then put a plan together to replace them in an orderly fashion."

A survey of the sewer system has already been underway about three years. The Sewer System Evaluation Survey was mandated by the state after a number of cities, including Bardstown, incurred heavy fines for sewer overflows and discharges, the long-range plan draft states. Those problems occurred three to five years ago, Hagan estimated.

The city has been paying an outside company to send cameras down into the sewer system and take video of the lines. Smoke tests are also employed to determine where improper connections may be — for instance, when a gutter feeds into the sewer lines.

"You don't want rainwater going into the sewer," said

Hagan, pointing out that it can flood the sewer, and also gives the city more water to treat, which costs money.

Many times, when the city finds a problem, it goes ahead and repairs that problem, Hagan explained.

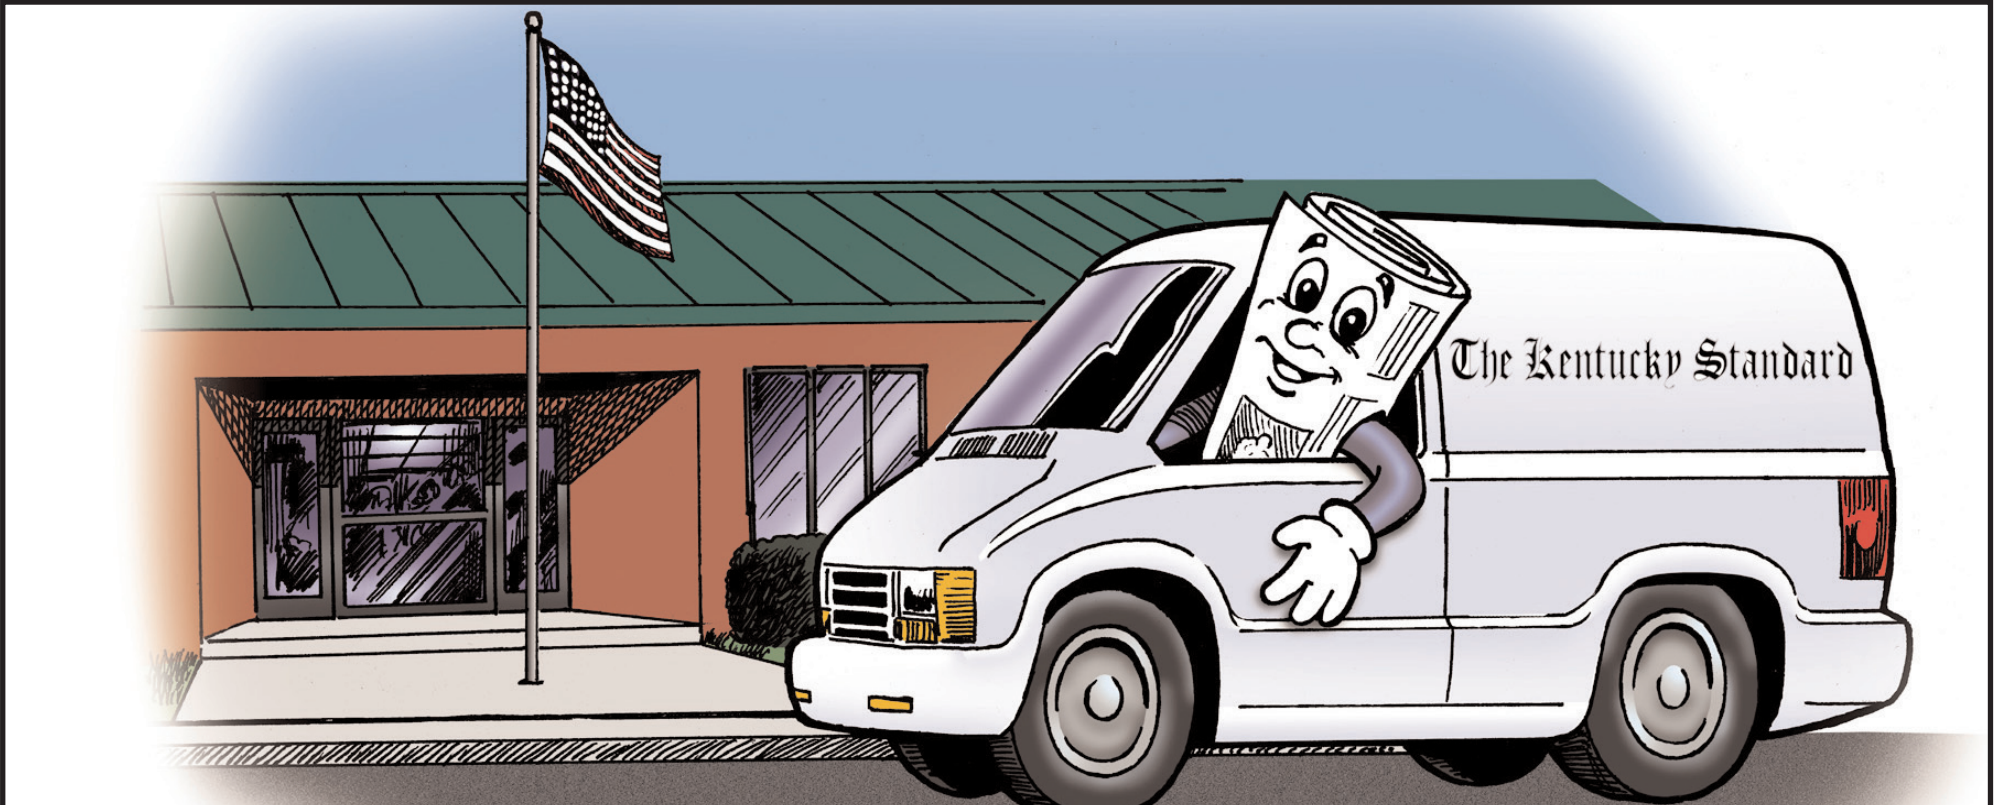

This is an ongoing project costing the city about $250,000 per year.

A Stormwater Quality Management Plan is already in place, requiring the city to manage excessive discharge and keep the public informed and involved. The long-range plan identified several areas that experience flooding, erosion and/or driving hazards during heavy rain, including South Fourth Street, Cottage Grove, Springhill, Salem

Hills and Hurstland Court / Spalding Avenue/Westwind Trail.

About $10,000 may need to go into next year's budget for the monitoring of a wetlands area behind Dean Watts Park. Because some wetlands were disturbed with the replacement of a Town Creek Interceptor Line, more wetlands were construction, and they must be monitored for a certain period of time, Hagan said.

Councilmen Tommy Reed and Bobby Simpson are also members of the long-range planning committee. Hagan is also chair of the water and wastewater committee, which contributed to his presentation Tuesday.

SUCCESS

March 5th-9th is NIE Week.

To celebrate, we would like to thank the dedicated sponsors who provide The Kentucky Standard the ability to send 1,410 paper to 20 local schools & learning facilities each week during the school year. With the support of each of these sponsors, we are able to extend a valuable learning tool to students of all ages.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Stone steps down as Tiger coach

PETER W. ZUBATY/The Kentucky Standard

Paul Stone (center) resigned this week after 11 seasons as Bardstown's head girls' basketball coach. Stone guided the Tigers to three straight 5th Region tournaments from 2008-10, doubling the school's previous number of region trips.

PETER W. ZUBATY
pzubaty@kystandard.com

Girls' head basketball coach Paul Stone has stepped down from his position, Bardstown school officials announced Wednesday.

"After careful consideration and a lot of thoughtful reflection, I decided to step down as girls' basketball coach at Bardstown High School," Stone said.

Stone, who is also the head softball coach, said that with the tight turnaround between basketball and softball seasons — some Kentucky schools began their softball season Wednesday, the same day as the beginning of the girls' Sweet 16 basketball tournament — the move would allow him to spend more practice time building the Tiger softball program.

"It's hard to work with one team when you're (coaching) another" at the same time, he said.

New rules put into place this school year by the Kentucky High School Athletic Association permit more of a year-round practice schedule in softball.

"Coaching two sports ... was really a strain, and it was really tough to commit my 100 percent efforts to either one, and I felt like it was best for me and both programs to give one of them up, so I resigned on Monday," he said.

Stone's basketball Tigers wrapped up the 2011-12 season with an 11-18 record, falling in the first round of the 19th District tournament to Washington County, 44-37. Stone's top team in his 11-year run was the 2007-08 Tigers, who went 25-6, the best record in school history, won the district title and advanced to the semifinals of the All A Classic state tournament. He guided three Bardstown squads to the 5th Region tournament, doubling the school's previous number of region trips, and his teams won three All A Classic 5th Region titles. Stone coached four of the top five teams in Bardstown school history in terms of single-season win totals.

Stone said he spoke with his team Wednesday before the announcement was made official to inform them of his decision.

"I told them I really enjoyed coaching them and had a really great year, I

BOYS' 5TH REGION CHAMPIONSHIP

Price's monster game denies Bardstown's repeat bid, 74-66

PETER W. ZUBATY
pzubaty@kystandard.com

CECILIA — Bardstown's bid for back-to-back 5th Region titles fell just short Tuesday, as John Hardin's Brandon Price earned his tourney MVP performance with a monster 37-point, seven-assist night in the Bulldogs' 74-66 win.

"It's really tough," Bardstown senior Jordan Brewer said. "You always come into games expecting to win, and I still think we should've won, but sometimes the ball just bounces the other way."

The Tigers' season came to an end with a 25-10 mark, while the Bulldogs — who also knocked out 19th District representative Bethlehem in the first round — improve to 22-8 overall and advance to next week's boys' Sweet 16 at Rupp Arena in Lexington, where they will face 15th Region champ Johnson Central (25-10).

The loss capped an outstanding two-year run for Bardstown under Jordan's father, Tiger head coach James "Boo" Brewer. Brewer took over the Bardstown program last year and guided the Tigers to a 5th Region All A Classic title and the overall 5th Region title and a berth in the Sweet 16 — the seventh in school history. This season, Bardstown played in the top two invitational tournaments in the state, as well as getting all the way to the statewide All A Classic championship game, falling on a last-second three-pointer to Covington Holy Cross. Brewer has a 49-15 combined record following his first two seasons as Bardstown head coach.

"When I took the job, I didn't know what I was getting

TRACK AND FIELD

Early results encouraging for Tiger track

PETER W. ZUBATY
pzubaty@kystandard.com

Bardstown kicked off its track and field season this past weekend at the Mason-Dixon Games in Louisville, and Tiger coach Jeremy Dale said there's a lot to look forward to as the weather turns warmer.

"The girls had an outstanding day," he said. "We were one point behind second place."

Bardstown's girls placed third overall in Class 1A with 61 points, just behind runner-up Newport Central Catholic. St. Henry ran away with the meet, tallying 84 points.

High points of the meet included first-place results from Samantha Bowling in the pole vault and Allison Leachman in the high jump. Both seniors and state medalists last year, Leachman cleared 4-10 to win her event, while Bowling posted an 8-00 mark.

Junior Victoria Yocum also enjoyed a strong meet, placing second in the 55-meter dash with a 7.67 time, and finishing third in the 400 with a 1:03.54 mark. Yocum also figured heavily in helping the Tiger relay squads to a runner-up finish in the 4x200 and a third-place time in the 4x400.

The Tiger boys placed fifth overall in the team competition, which Dale said exceeded expectations considering some of the team's top athletes were unavailable while the basketball Tigers were still playing in the 5th Region tournament.

"We had some nice performances," Dale said. "In history past, the boys do well at Mason-Dixon when

Nelson County Little League to 'reclaim' old fields

PETER W. ZUBATY
pzubaty@kystandard.com

As the Nelson County Little League moves forward with new leadership, it is also reaching back to its past.

"We are reclaiming Don Harned Field and Sportsmen's Club," said League president Jason Floyd, who takes over this season for Tim Hockensmith.

Don Harned Field is situated across Broadway from the Bardstown High School athletic complex, while Sportsmen's Club is on KY 49 near My Old Kentucky Home Golf Club. The facilities served as the home for Little League baseball and softball since the 1970s up until the opening six years ago of the Dean Watts Park sports complex, Nelson County's ground zero for youth baseball, football, soccer and softball, as well as the home for Bethlehem High School baseball.

Nowadays, however, Floyd said the fields don't see much of their original intended use. Don Harned Field is mostly used now by folks who bring their dogs to run inside the fences, oftentimes while the owners are across the street using the Bardstown High track.

Floyd said he has heard some complaints from people who played on the fields as children, but now have children of their own and are disappointed with the current state of the fields.

"They have watched as it has into,” he said. “For the last two years I’ve had wonderful kids, wonderful seniors, (including) two of my own that I’m really going to miss, but all of them I consider my sons. I hated that it had to end, but we were in the region finals again — that’s two years in a row — and I told my guys, ‘you have nothing to hold your head down about, and just keep your head up, turn that chapter and write another chapter.’”

Bardstown struggled offensively for much of the game, hitting 23-of-58 field goals, while John Hardin hit 21-for-38 from the field and 12-of-19 before halftime. In the first half, the Tigers managed just 7-for-21 from the field and fell behind by 14 going into the locker room.

“We never could get over the hump from the first half,” Brewer said. “We missed a lot of shots under the basket, and we missed our defensive assignments.”

The Tigers rallied in the second half behind Brewer’s adopted son, Anthony Myrks — who scored all of his team-high 21 points after the break following a first half where the senior was saddled with foul trouble — and managed to pull within five points on a few occasions late, but could never get things down to a one-possession game.

“He was more focused the second half than he was the first half,” Brewer said of Myrks. “In the second half, our offense started clicking.”

But while Myrks had a monster second half, Price’s was even better, as the John Hardin junior managed to answer every big play by Bardstown with one of his own, such as his drive and dish out to teammate Jeremy Harness for a three-pointer that stretched the Bulldog lead back to 10 with 4:42 remaining after a Myrks three-point play had pulled the Tigers within seven. On two other occasions in the fourth quarter, Price hit free throws to keep the Bulldog lead at 10.

“You’ve got to give hands-down to Price — he had an unbelievable night,”

PETER W. ZUBATY/The Kentucky Standard

Bardstown senior Anthony Myrks, right, battles with John Hardin's Daveon Greene for a fourth-quarter rebound in Tuesday's 5th Region championship. Myrks scored 21 points in the second half in a furious rally, but the Tigers fell short of back-to-back titles in a 74-66 loss.

Brewer said. “I’ve never seen him play like that. He’s a great guard, a great player. Tonight, it was all about him.”

In all, Price hit 11-of-15 field goal tries — including 2-for-3 on three-pointers to go with a host of acrobatic drives to the bucket — and was 13-of-17 from the free throw line. His 37 points was the most in a 5th Region championship game since 1993 when Marion County’s Anthony Epps exploded for 37 in an 87-59 win over Nelson County on the way to the Sweet 16 championship that year.

“I was trying to be aggressive,” said Price, who had a frustrating 9-for-16 performance from the foul line in the semifinals. “The past two games I haven’t played up to my ability. In order for us to win region, I have to attack.”

After Price’s free throws made it 64-54 with 2:37 remaining, Bardstown’s Marcus Cosby scored five consecutive points to cut it to 64-59, the closest the Tigers had been since the first quarter.

Price and Harness hit several clutch free throws during the final 1:04 of the game to keep the Tigers at bay. Devonte Grundy hit a three with 15 seconds left to cut it to 71-66, but time ran out on the Bardstown comeback try.

“Tonight, it just wasn’t our night,” Brewer said.

Bardstown also got 15 points from Grundy and 10 apiece from Brewer and Cosby. For John Hardin, Harness and Daveon Greene scored 10 apiece, while Greene also grabbed 12 rebounds.

The game marked the end of the road for Tiger seniors such as Myrks and Brewer, as well as starters Justin Hubbard and Cody Ramos and key reserves Drew Starks, Brandon Coulter.

“It’s always tough losing in a close game like that; you just have to move on in life,” said Cosby, a junior. “We had some missed opportunities — we just have to capitalize on those. We have to work hard and get it back.”

been switched to a dog-poop park, and people are disgusted,” he said.

As a result, the League is having a clean-up day for the Don Harned Field from noon-4 p.m. Saturday, involving players and other volunteers. Floyd said the kids will also have a scrimmage game to cap off the day, as well. The League came to an agreement with the Bardstown-Nelson County Recreation Department to take over maintenance of the fields.

The goal is for the downtown fields to be used in conjunction with the fields at Dean Watts Park during the regular season and tournaments.

The League starts its season 9 a.m. April 21 at Dean Watts Park with opening day ceremonies, games and other activities all day, a parade, as well as visits from local dignitaries. In addition, Floyd said, U.S. Congressman Brett Guthrie is planning to present an American flag that was flown over the U.S. Capitol building that will be raised at the park.

coming back with the girls; the guys are kind of young,” Dale said. “Right now, we’re carrying about 94 kids on the track team, and there’s probably not a Class A school in the state that can boast that. It’s because people want to be a part of a winning program and a program with some history, and they like having that kind of success.”

Dale said this year marks the first for the Bardstown Middle School program, which will be headed up by Aaron Boggs, who also coaches boys’ soccer.

“We’re going to have probably 50-70 in the middle school program,” he said. “It’s kind of a neat experience to walk out here on the track and see a 130 kids out there.”

Top Tiger performers include senior Clay Donaldson, who was runner-up in the pole vault, clearing 10-00, as well as sophomore Brandon Price, who was third in the 800 with a 2:09.43 time. Price also helped the Tiger 4x800 relay squad to a runner-up time of 9:04.48.

Dale said the team will have a lot of depth this season, and that competition should only make the team better going forward into the outdoor season. The Tigers’ first meet is March 20 at the Shelby County All-Corners meet. Bardstown’s first home meet is March 29, one of three home meets this season. The Tigers also serve as host to the Class 1A Region 3 meet in May.

the basketball team isn’t as good, because we have those basketball players with us. When we go there, we’re not filling all our events with the best people we have in those events. I was very pleased with a fifth-place finish. ... We had a good, solid day.”

Bardstown tallied 44 points to tie with Bishop Brossart, and the Tigers were just four points behind third-place Louisville Holy Cross and three behind Danville, which was fourth. St. Henry dominated in winning the team competition, racking up 90 points to easily outdistance runner-up Beechwood’s 60 points.

Registration date set for Kindergarten, Preschool & Childcare

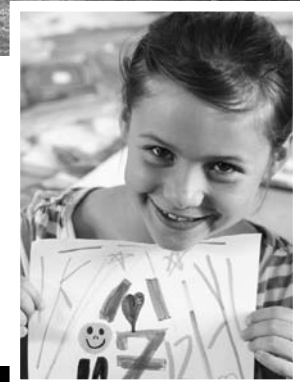

The Nelson County School District has set Friday, March 16, as the registration date for the 2012-2013 school year for the district’s kindergarten, preschool and childcare programs.

Registration:

Kindergarten registration will take place for eligible children at each school. Preschool registration will take place from 8am-5pm at the Early Learning Center, 1200 Cardinal Lane, Bardstown. Childcare registration will take place at the Early Learning Center and also at program offices in each school during those hours.

Necessary Documents:

Parents are required to bring a full-size copy of their child’s official birth certificate; their child’s social security number, and proof of residence in the form of a recent electric or water bill with the current address at which the child resides.

Eligibility:

Any child who will be five years old by October 1, 2012 is eligible for kindergarten. Free preschool is offered for four-year-olds eligible to participate in the district’s free lunch program. Free preschool is provided for three- and four-year-olds with developmental disabilities. Tuition-based preschool is offered for four-year-olds who reach that age by October 1, 2012 based on availability in the district program. The district daycare program will offer before school care and after school care for school-age children (grades k-5). Preschool students may register for childcare at a reduced rate for the part of the day they are not participating in the preschool program.

felt like, with them,” he said. “I’m going to miss it.”

Stone tallied a 135-165 career record as Tiger coach. The position was the Scott County native’s first head coaching post after serving seven years as a boys’ assistant coach at Central Hardin.

“It was just a really great experience and I’m thankful for Bardstown giving me a chance to be a head basketball coach,” he said, but “it’s just time to move on to a different phase.”

Daughter raised in abusive home is burdened by past

DEAR ABBY: My sisters and I grew up in a horrible household with our mother. She was not only OK with the severe abuse and neglect we suffered, she encouraged it. Now grown up, my sisters have moved out of state and have no contact with her. My contact with Mom is limited although I live close to her. My sisters want her to know nothing about them, and they are very cautious.

JEANNE PHILLIPS

» DEAR ABBY
Syndicated Columnist

Recently, one of them had a beautiful baby. I'm happy for her. Because of the abuse she suffered during our childhood it was difficult for her to conceive, so this seems like a miracle.

I was given the news on the condition that Mom is not to know about the baby, nor is anyone who talks to her — aunts, uncles, children, grandchildren and our cousins. If I don't keep my promise, my sisters will cut me out of their lives, too.

I'm angry about it. I didn't hurt them, MOM did. I went through the same nightmare they experienced. How do I deal with all of this now?

PRISONER OF THE PAST

DEAR PRISONER: Your sisters have dealt with the abuse they suffered by going away, leaving all reminders behind. You chose to maintain contact with your mother. You have many valid reasons to be angry, but please do not aim your anger at your sisters for wanting to protect themselves from someone who condoned and encouraged their abuse.

Because you are having difficulty with your emotions, contact Childhelp to find the location of a qualified counselor near you. The toll-free number is 800-422-4453 and its website is www.childhelp.org. With professional help, you will be able to finally work through the feelings you have been avoiding for so long and start your own healing.

DEAR ABBY: We have two sons, a toddler and an infant. I'm a stay-at-home mom who plays in the mud, sand and dirt with her boys. I wear my bathing suit or a T-shirt and shorts. Later, we'll take a bath or shower together. It's safer and easier for me to be in the large, deep tub with them. We have bubbles, sing songs and make silly hairdos with shampoo. The boys never touch my body or point to my "parts."

My husband thinks I should be more modest, but I'm the one who nursed them. I'm the one they watch on the potty to learn. My nudity is never sexual in any way. Do you think it's OK for my boys to see me in the buff?

CAREFREE MOMMY
IN SARASOTA

DEAR CAREFREE MOMMY: There is a difference between interacting with your very young boys and being sexually provocative. I see no harm in what you're doing. Be "modest" when the kids are a little older, but for now there's no danger of them building an unhealthy mother fixation.

DEAR ABBY: In the past you have asked readers to tell you their pet peeves. You know what really irks me? It's when a man I haven't seen for many years runs into me and has changed to the point of being unrecognizable — lost most or all of his hair, stomach sagging to his groin and totally out of shape — and the first thing he says to me is, "Oh, you've gained weight!"

What can I say to these fools without slamming a mirror over their heads because apparently they don't own one?

NOT THE ONLY
CHUBBY ONE IN TEXAS

DEAR NOT THE ONLY: Try this: "Have YOU looked in the mirror lately?"

>> HOROSCOPES

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ You could attempt to be diplomatic, only to find that your fuse is way too short to do so. Pressure builds when dealing with others who have very different ideas. Adjust your plans. Tonight: Order in.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ You are even and careful. You could be far more nervous than you realize, as you attempt to juggle different interests. Honor and internalize information that puts a new slant on a situation. Tonight: Your treat.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Good intentions might not carry you as far as you might like, but clear, analytic thinking will. A partnership soars into the limelight. You wonder what is possible as a team. Why not find out? Tonight: Wave in the weekend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Deal directly with a child or loved one who keeps tossing the status quo out the window. Detach more, and get past your emotional response. You need to let this person see the results of his or her actions. Tonight: Not to be found.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ Zero in on what you want. You could be overwhelmed by all the calls and unexpected requests that seem to come your way. Just know that you need to focus or update your plans. You simply cannot be everywhere at once. Tonight: Join friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Be aware of the cost of an expenditure. You could be overwhelmed by your options, but if you keep looking at all the choices, you might lose the moment. Sometimes you cannot go through every detail and check out each idea, no matter how wise it may seem. Tonight: Use care with any type of risk.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You can handle whatever comes down the pike far better than many other people. Your sense of humor and general sense of well-being come into play. Think positively about your choice you have to make, even if you only can get wild feedback. Tonight: Trust your desirability.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ You could be a little out of kilter if you try to do something that really is out of your league. Right now, the best and only choice is to step back and think more about your options. Others do not seem to be able to communicate what is on their minds. Tonight: Take personal time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Focus on groups and meetings. You could be pulled in by a situation; however, after some thought, you will regret the connection. If you can, buy yourself some time rather than have to back out later. Financial matters are subject to dramatic changes. Tonight: Say "yes."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ Your mood is changeable and so are you. Why wonder which way to go? Simply flow with the moment. Understanding becomes possible if you let go of a need to control and structure every single second. Tonight: Invite others to join you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ You are more than ready for the weekend but frequently are distracted from what you need to do in the here and now. Consider taking the afternoon off, if you can — you will be a lot happier. A new friend could prove to be unpredictable. Tonight: Paint the town red.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ You might want to rethink a decision, even if you thought it was a good one. Someone around you could be explosive and quite different from how he or she usually is. This person might need space from you at the moment. Don't fight it, for now. Tonight: Head home.

Bid forms may be picked up at the County Judge Executive's office, 1 Court Square, Bardstown, KY 40004. Bids shall be delivered or sent to the County Judge Executive's office no later than 10:00 a.m. on March 30, 2012.

Property is open to the public Monday through Friday 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. or may be shown by appointment by calling 502-348-1800.

The Nelson Fiscal Court reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Notice to William Groome:

Our office has received a complaint concerning the use of your property at 1130 Old Nazareth Road in Nelson County. On March 3, and again on June 15, 2010 a Code Enforcement Officer inspected your property and observed a dilapidated burned building. This is a violation of the Nelson County Nuisance Ordinance and KRS 381.770.

Your property is in violation of section (d) this section reads as follows:

(1) Any building, house, or structure which is so out of repair and dilapidated that it constitutes a fire hazard liable to catch on fire or communicate fire, or which due to lack of adequate maintenance or neglect, endangers the public health, welfare, or safety, or materially interferes with the peaceful enjoyment by owners or occupants of adjacent property.

KRS 381.770(4) states:

(4) It shall be unlawful in any city, county, to consolidated local government, or urban-county for the owner of a property to permit any structure upon the property to become unfit and unsafe for human habitation, occupancy, or use or to permit conditions to exist in the structure which are dangerous or injurious to the health or safety of the occupants of the structure, the occupants of neighboring structures, or other residents of the city, county, consolidated local government, or urban-county.

Also, if you fail to correct the above violation, in addition to the above set out penalty the county has the right to enter your property and correct the violation at your expense as set forth in section (B) of the Abatement Procedures section of the ordinance which states as follows:

(B) If the person so served does not abate the nuisance within prescribed amount of time, the county may proceed to abate the nuisance, keeping an account of the expense of the abatement, and the expense shall be charged and paid by the owner or occupant.

Prior to the county entering upon your property and correcting the above violation you are entitled to a hearing. The hearing has been scheduled before the Nelson County Judge on March day of 23rd, 2012 at 11:00 am local time in the Nelson County Fiscal Court Room, Second floor, Old Courthouse Building, One Courthouse Square, Bardstown, KY 40004.

If it is determined that your property is in violation of the ordinance and or KRS 381.770(4) then it will be ordered that the offending structure be removed at your expense and the expenses shall constitute a lien upon the property.

Notice to Kyna Satterly:
Our office has received a complaint concerning the use of your property at 91 Lebanon Junction Road in Nelson County. On December 10, 2010, a Code Enforcement Officer inspected your property and observed a dilapidated burned building. This is a violation of the Nelson County Nuisance Ordinance and KRS 381.770.

Your property is in violation of section (d) this section reads as follows:

(1) Any building, house, or structure which is so out of repair and dilapidated that it constitutes a fire hazard liable to catch on fire or communicate fire, or which due to lack of adequate maintenance or neglect, endangers the public health, welfare, or safety, or materially interferes with the peaceful enjoyment by owners or occupants of adjacent property.

KRS 381.770(4) states:

(4) It shall be unlawful in any city, county, to consolidated local government, or urban-county for the owner of a property to permit any structure upon the property to become unfit and unsafe for human habitation, occupancy, or use or to permit conditions to exist in the structure which are dangerous or injurious to the health or safety of the occupants of the structure, the occupants of neighboring structures, or other residents of the city, county, consolidated local government, or urban-county.

The ordinance allows only five (5) days for you to bring your property into compliance. This will be the last notice you will receive from our office concerning this violation.

Failure to correct this matter within five (5) days may subject you to the following penalties:

"Violation of the provisions of this chapter or failure to comply with any of its requirements shall constitute a misdemeanor. Any person who violates this chapter or fails to comply with any of its requirements shall, on conviction thereof, be fined not less than $100.00 nor more than $500.00 or imprisoned for not more than 30 days or both, and in addition shall pay all costs and expenses involved in the case. Each day a violation continues shall be considered a separate offense. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the County from taking any other lawful action as is necessary to prevent or remedy any violation"

Also, if you fail to correct the above violation, in addition to the above set out penalty the county has the right to enter your property and correct the violation at your expense as set forth in section (B) of the Abatement Procedures section of the ordinance which states as follows:

(B) If the person so served does not abate the nuisance within prescribed amount of time, the county may proceed to abate the nuisance, keeping an account of the expense of the abatement, and the expense shall be charged and paid by the owner or occupant.

A copy of the full text of said Ordinances are available for public inspection at the Office of the County Clerk, ELAINE FILIATREAU, 113 E. Stephen Foster Avenue, Bardstown, Kentucky, at the Office of the County Judge/Executive, DEAN WATTS, 1 Court Square, Bardstown, Kentucky, during the hours of 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The Nelson County Court Clerk hereby certifies that the above Ordinances are true and accurate and written in a way calculated to inform the public of their content.

NELSON COUNTY
FISCAL COURT
Elaine Filiatreau, Clerk

NOTICE:
The Bardstown Historical Review Board will hold a public hearing on Monday, March 12, 2012, at 6:30 p.m. in the Fiscal Court meeting room (2nd Floor), Old Courthouse Bldg., One Court Square, Bardstown. The purpose of the hearing is to receive public comment on proposed revisions to the Bardstown Historic Design Review Manual. A

LEGAL NOTICES
The Nelson County Fiscal Court, at the meeting held on March 6, 2012 at 9:00 a.m., at the Fiscal Courtroom, 1 Court Square, Bardstown, Kentucky, called for a second reading and thereafter adopted the following ordinances:

Ordinances (Orders) Amending and Adopting as Amended Zoning Map Entitled "Zoning Map, Cities of Bardstown, Bloomfield, Fairfield, New Haven and Nelson County Kentucky"

By Changing The District Classification Of The Property Of Hereinafter Described:

1. Rezoning Request #2361 of Nally & Haydon Holdings, LLC to amend the Conditions of Approval on Zoning Map Amendment #2222 to the following sentence to Section II, Paragraph I binding elements.

The letter of credit referenced herein shall be suspended until such time as the operation of the Quarry re-commences blasting operations on the property set out in this ordinance.

A copy of the full text of said Ordinances are available for public inspection at the Office of the County Clerk, ELAINE FILIATREAU, 113 E. Stephen Foster Avenue, Bardstown, Kentucky, at the Office of the County Judge/Executive, DEAN WATTS, 1 Court Square, Bardstown, Kentucky, during the hours of 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.
